Essential cookies

Session cookie to authenticate users and prevent fraudulent use of user accounts. We also use these cookies to establish and control a session so we can identify if you are logged out. The session cookie is refreshed every time the user logs in and cleared upon logout. The session ID expires in 15 minutes.

We also use local storage to store locale, username and restful-authenticated information which is used to identify if you are logged in. This local storage lasts only for the duration of your session and is cleared when you log out.

We may also use Web Beacons which is a small graphic image that informs us whether you have opened the emails or messages sent to you.

We do not use cookies for advertising purposes and we will not share your information with any other party not listed in Section 5 without your consent.

Your browser may allow you to disable existing cookies, block cookies automatically or notify you if you are receiving a cookie. To find out more about cookies, including how to see what cookies have been set, visit www.aboutcookies.org or www.allaboutcookies.org.

Please note, however, that if you delete cookies or refuse to accept them, you might not be able to use all of the features we offer, you may not be able to store your preferences, and some of our pages might not display properly.
